

The 2001 ABA List Report

Welcome to the 2001 List Report. First of all, let me thank Bob Berman and Cindy Lippincott for doing the vast majority of the work for this report. My part is easy, just write an intro. As with the Big Day Report, this intro will be somewhat spare.

Reporting Thresholds

I know you have all been waiting to find out what the new thresholds are for reporting list numbers. Well, drum roll please, they are one half of the "official" area list. Sound familiar? Well, the decision was made to go back to the original formula. In keeping with the status quo I will go with the flow. I am not convinced that this is the best way, but I don't have time to get into that write now. More on this in the 2002 report, or not.

Big Years

I received only two Big Year narratives this year. Big Years are somewhat near and dear to me having completed my second Florida Big Year in a row in 2001. More on that later.

Two guys, Geographer Mark Swan and surgeon Charlie Lyon battled it out in a Big Year for the state of Louisiana. This Big Year was somewhat of a Big Birdathon. Mark posted pictures of their best birds on the Nature Conservancy's web site. Pledges were solicited from visitors to the site. Funds raised would be used to buy bird habitat.

Both guys ran around the state finding and chasing some pretty rare birds. The final score Charlie 348, Mark 346. Great job for a great cause guys! How two married guys can pull off a Big Year is beyond me. I was about ready to divorce myself after my attempts.

Another report that I received from Utah is short but sweet.

A Record Big Year in Utah —

by Larene Wyss

Until 2001, there were only four birders in Utah that had seen more than 300 species in a calendar year. I wanted to be the fifth. The record was 316, set in 1999, but I never gave any thought to try for the record. All I wanted was to get 300 species, and I questioned my ability to do even that. I set out to reach my goal with much gusto. I gave it everything I had to compensate for my doubts, and in doing so I had better success than I ever imagined. By August 2nd, I had 299 species on my list. Knowing that there were other people doing a big year and that they weren't far behind, I decided to make a 600-mile round trip drive to southern Utah just to get a Green Heron.. It was the only resident bird left that I could get during that time of year. On August 4th, I made my goal.

I couldn't end there! My thoughts turned to "how high can I go?" I was still behind the record holder's 1999 pace, but there was something in my favor. Fall migration had pretty well shut down for him that year, and he only added seven birds to his list after September 1st. If fall migration was kind to me, I could possibly set a new record.

Due to an excellent email list-server that Utah birders post to, I was able to act quickly and chase first state records of Ruff and Prairie Warbler, a second state sighting of Little Gull, and a third state sighting of Red-throated Loon. Other Utah rarities consisted Red-breasted Sapsucker, Chestnut-sided Warbler, and my nemesis Ruddy Turnstone. There were times when it got frustratingly slow, but then there were weekends like the time when I found and reported a Surf, White-winged and Black Scoter in a 24-hour period, something I'm not sure has ever been done before in Utah. Fall migration was indeed kind to me. I finished the year with 326 species!

I think there are five important elements in having a successful big year: Flexibility in your job (or being retired), tenacity to keep going when new sightings get painfully slow, a very understanding spouse (especially when he/she is a non-birder), a reliable car, and luck in choosing to do a big year when it just happens to be a year when migration is on your side.

The Florida Big Years

So how did I do in my Big Year(s)? There are a thousand stories I could tell about the experiences, birds, new friends, long drives, big misses, and total surprises of the last two years. However, I have been warned that brevity is preferable to rambling. So, here goes.

In the year 2000 (I know this is the 2001 report, but I'm the editor, what are you going to do?) I decided to do a year list in Florida for the first time. I was scheduled to make my virgin trip to the Dry Tortugas, I had a new truck, and I realized that after living in Florida for 29 years, I really did not know my state very well. What better way to learn your state than to do a Big Year? I set out with the idea that this would be a "practice" run with no real idea of challenging the record (347.) In January and February, I was fairly casual about the whole thing. I let many of the winter residents slide until December. I even declined to chase several rare birds. The only one that would haunt me would be the Black-headed Gull in Gainesville. In March, I started to get the fever when I pursued and saw my life Groove-billed Ani. By the end of November I had 331 species and it was clear that I had a shot at the record. I had not gotten many of the "easy" winter birds and there was also the possibility of more rarities. I put out a request for help on the Florida Birds-L listserve and the received a great deal of help. Up to this point, I was doing somewhat of a stealth Big Year, not really publishing the results, or the running total. With the help of the folks on the list, and lots of sleep deprived nights, I added 21 species of birds in the month of December. Many of these were the neglected winter residents. The record tying bird was at a feeder at my new friend Alan Knothe's house. Alan was preparing lunch and I was in Big Year mode, staring at the feeder. House Finches are a veritable pest in north Florida these days, but a few Purple Finches show up from time to time. An adult male finch plopped down on the feeder and my binoculars went up. Probably another House Finch, like so many before. Gee, he has a lot of red on him. The red comes down onto the flanks. Man, what a honkin' big bill he has. What a strange looking House Finch. Hey dummy, you just saw a Purple finch! Wow, best lunch I ever had. Later that same day I would spot a Ross's Goose in a flock of Snows at the Okaloosa County holding ponds (Mama Rosa Ponds.) I ended the year with 352 species. My Florida list at the beginning of the year was a mere 351 species.

I did not report this total, since I was headlong into the "real" Big Year and did not know about the reporting procedures. I was determined to beat the record and apply the lessons learned in the "practice" Big Year. In contrast to the first big year, I got zero year birds in December. There were actually four birds sighted in December 2000 that I did not see in 2001. My last bird, Brown Creeper #365, was found two days before Thanksgiving. I actually had four that day and one the next. Previously, I had seen a total of four in the state. The record breaking bird (#353) was an unobtrusive little Dark-eyed Junco behind the restroom at St. Mark's NWR. I had been birding for five days looking all over for anything to add to my list. It was late in the day and I had run out of birds to chase. I was just enjoying a leisurely walk before heading home, satisfied that I had at least tied the record by the end of October. A bird flits up along the side of the trail. Binoculars up, Dark-eyed Junco. Neat bird, I have always liked them. A new record is set, just like that. No fanfare, nothing rare. Just a little bird on a trail I have been on many times before, when I wasn't even expecting anything.

Competition? The aforementioned Alan Knothe was also doing a Big Year in 2001. His total? 330. Not nearly as impressive as mine? Well, I wouldn't say that. Alan has the burden of having a life, something I did not have to contend with. He had job responsibilities that restricted his ability to get away for chasing and birding. Geographically he was somewhat impaired as well. Ft. Walton Beach (his home) is a long, long way from south Florida (only about 60 miles east of Pensacola in the western end of the panhandle.) I know how far that is because I traveled there eight times during 2001. Despite this, Alan managed 330 species. If he had the time that I had, I wouldn't be able to claim number one status. Alan had a knack for choosing the right time to migrate south. On one of his two trips to south Florida he picked up flamingos (requiring seven trips for me to get.) On his one trip to the Dry Tortugas (I would make eight for the year) I found Bahama Mockingbird and Lazuli Bunting for him. I already had both of those for the year.

Another birder whose number may not seem as impressive at first is Ray Webb. He finished the year with 312 species, a personal best. Ray also did not have as much time to chase or bird due to job restrictions. His goal was to hit 300 for the year, something he had never done before, and he beat it by a good margin.

The numbers of these two guys may not seem impressive at first, but that is only secondary. Both of them had fun, met new friends, and saw lots of life birds. That's what it's really all about anyway.

And so, I must stop my ramblings and conclude this year's report with the promise that next year's will be better (and less crunched for time.)

Moving Ahead

Ever since the founding of ABA, the annual List and Big Day Reports have been an integral part of ABA membership. Beginning several years ago, members were offered the opportunity to not receive the report, but most choose to continue. Each year, around 85 percent of ABA members get the printed report, while around 5 percent submit their list totals. The printed report is funded through membership subscriptions, specific donations from members (who are acknowledged by having their names printed in bold in the report) and from advertisers.

As part of our expanding online offering, in 2002 we shall be including the ABA List Report and Big Day Report on our web site, in addition to the print version. We shall also be posting the new ABA Checklist on our website.

The ABA List Report and Big Day Report will be available as a downloadable PDF file. Members will be able to transfer the entire report to their PC and view and even search the report with Adobe Acrobat Reader, a piece of software available free of charge. In addition, members can print the entire report, or any part of it, from their computer. So the online version will have added functionality over the print version.

ABA will also create a series of web pages to display the list totals from the List Report by region, including annual lists. Another set of pages will contain the tables from the Big Day Report, as well as selected narratives. These pages will be housed at www.americanbirding.org/bigday

We shall be monitoring traffic through these pages, and we will be very interested in receiving your input on them. You can send your responses to our Director of Publications by email (pubdir@aba.org) or by regular mail to ABA, PO Box 6599, Colorado Springs CO 80934.

AviSys Version 5

As Simple As You Wish ~ As Powerful As You Need

See our web site for great new features!

Palm Support! Clements' 2001 Taxonomy! Subspecies Support!

New! Over 2,000 Formal Places, Unlimited Locations!

The Leader ~ Always a Giant Step Ahead of All The Rest!

AviSys is a full-featured worldwide database and reporting system for serious birders. It can be enhanced by adding the Official Shawneen Finnegan Worldwide Nation Checklist Add-On (as provided in BirdArea by Santa Barbara Software Products), providing the most authoritative, highest quality, and most up-to-date checklists of the 254 nations of the world. The checklists are tightly and seamlessly integrated with AviSys, providing beautiful screen and printed output with seen, seen-in-nation, and endemic markers, and instant worldwide nation-by-nation range query for any species. AviSys produces seen reports, checklists and hit lists of any nation or state, any group of nations or states, and all ABA Regions and Areas.

You can instantly reduce the on-screen list from a world or NA list to the checklist of any nation, state, county, wildlife refuge, etc., whether provided by AviSys or created by you. Deal with only the birds you need. Rotate through modes instantly.

One AviSys user wrote: "OUTSTANDING! I have been a computer professional for over 30 years and must congratulate you on generating state-of-the-art, convenient to use, efficient and reliable software." Another says: "AVISYS IS A BLAST!" Precisely our objective.

- * Unlimited Number of Lists: all major geographic lists automatically updated. Example: assigning a sighting to your yard also updates your City, County, State, Nation, Continent, worldwide ABA Area, worldwide ABA Region, and Life lists.
- * Full ABA N.A. Checklist, Clements World Checklist, and Official Tony White State/Province Checklists, all fully integrated with screen and report facilities.

BirdBase With Subspecies & Mammals Add-Ons BirdArea

Nearly all the ABA birders reporting life lists over 6000 who use computers use our software. It is the software most widely used by all those over the 1400 bird threshold. Why? Because it lets them easily keep track of birds seen and also helps them see new ones with its ability to list the birds of any major world area, labeling all endemics and birds previously seen in the area, outside it, or both.

View an on-screen demonstration at <http://members.aol.com/sbsp>

BirdBase can switch between displaying all the birds in James Clements' world list or any selection of them, when recording sightings. It handles subspecies and accepts 5000-word sighting notes. Recording sightings updates all annual/life lists (e.g., yard, county, state, nation, ABA region/area, world). These can give details of every sighting, or of only each bird's first sighting, or just name birds seen. BirdBase can list all sightings of a bird, list in date-order all trips or all bird's first sightings/yearly arrival dates, do Christmas counts, etc.

BirdArea can list in detail the range of any bird. And it can produce check lists of the birds of all major world areas (i.e., US states, Canadian provinces, nations, ABA regions/areas, important islands) with endemics labeled. Printouts allow multiple check marks and notes. Shawneen Finnegan's annually-updated ranges come from more than 800 publications.

If BirdBase is used BirdArea can label birds already seen on each check list, make lists of birds not already seen, and find any recorded sighting in which a bird is outside its known range. If BirdArea is used BirdBase can switch to displaying only birds whose ranges include any of the major world areas when recording sightings of a trip to that area.

Subspecies add-on puts the names of all of Clements' world bird subspecies in BirdBase. Mammals add-on puts the name and range of every mammal in BirdBase and BirdArea.

BirdBase is $59.95+$4.00 s&h; so is BirdArea. Buy both for $99.95+$6.00. BirdBase with N. American birds is $39.95+$3.00. Subspecies is $19.95+$3.00. Mammals is $29.95+$3.00. Tax on orders to CA is 8%. Double overseas s&h. Visa, MasterCard. For Windows.

Belize Guatemala Costa Rica Panama Mexico

The best introduction to tropical birding?

Belize is an English-speaking country with a stable government, thriving ecotourism industry, 570 species of birds, the highest percentage of intact rainforest in any Latin American country, and a forthcoming field guide (written by one of our directors). And its less than two hours from the U.S.

Join us for our field guide release tour in May 2003.

OE was founded on the simple belief that ecotourism has the power to support conservation. With a growing list of guides and destinations, including the world's only birding tour to see the endemics of the Revillagigedo Archipelago, Mexico (supporting the reintroduction of the extirpated Socorro Dove), the choice seems simple.
